

Centre for ADHD Awareness Canada

2017/18 ADHD in Education Awareness/Advocacy Campaign

To better advocate for students with ADHD we need to hear from you!

CADDAC continues to receive countless calls from concerned and frustrated parents seeking education resources for their children with ADHD. At the same time CADDAC receives encouraging stories of positive outcomes when educators understand ADHD. Due to the continuing stigma of ADHD, negative feedback parents receive, fear of possible retaliation from schools should they voice their frustration and negative attention their child may experience parents are often too intimidated to publicly speak out.

CADDAC fully understands, however advocacy requires that parents' voices to be heard!

CADDAC has developed 2 initiatives for you to express your thoughts anonymously.

1. Our National Education Survey
2. Share your Experiences through e-mail advocacy@caddac.ca

To access, additional details, the survey our Policy Paper and media release

Go to www.caddac.ca

Join the discussion on this topic through our

Facebook page

